Description:

Slide transparency. Pictured is a building, likely a Post Office due to the blue mail box attached to the front of the building. There are two doors into the building, one at the very right of the photograph and the other, which has a cornstalk decoration, at the left of the photograph. Two buckets are on the floor next to them. A sign above the door on the right reads, "Bloo-," before it is cut off, likely indicating that this is the Post Office of Bloomville, NY. Three bags of garbage and a box wait at the edge of the sidewalk. An American flag has been affixed to the wooden post of the building's porch.
