Description:

Glass plate negative. Two men and three women work in a field on a side hill raking and gathering hay or grain. A horse drawn wagon of fodder is down the hill a bit from the photographer. A woman drives a horse team while a man stands on the back of the wagon on top of the hay or grain already gathered. A small boy sits on a wagon with a dog in the distance and to the right. At the bottom of the hill beyond the group other crops grow. In the distance is a lake or possibly the Ouleout Creek and likely the town of Franklin, Delaware County, New York.
